CONCEPT

The shadow gap

In every KAÏRA interior, a fine recessed joint separates two materials: stone from wood, a panel from the ceiling. This shadow gap is the signature of the studio's architecture.

The wordmark is drawn on the same principle. The arm of the K floats beside its stem, the bar of the A floats between its legs, the leg of the R stands free under its bowl. The two dots of the Ï are lozenges, like an inlay in a stone floor.

High-contrast strokes and hairline serifs give the editorial elegance; the gaps give the architecture.

Two more lockups

Stacked, with the arch emblem, for covers, presentations and signage. Horizontal, for the website header, email signatures and narrow formats.

K and A, one stroke

The arm of the K becomes the left leg of the A; the bar of the A passes behind the K, separated by two shadow gaps. Set inside an open arch, the doorway of every interior, it becomes the studio's emblem: profile picture, stamp, packaging, embossing.
